Global Issues and Awareness:
Good Governance,
Good Health and Good Technology for Good Life

International Graduate Research Conference 2015 (iGRC 2015) Global Issues and Awareness: Good Governance, Good Health and Good Technology for Good Life is the third international graduate research conference organized by the Graduate School, Faculty of Political Science and Faculty of Humanities, Chiang Mai University, Thailand, providing post graduate students the opportunity to present results of their ongoing research in any academic discipline. The iGRC will create a unique and dynamic venue that facilitates the efficient exchange of knowledge and ideas across a wide variety of disciplines from Arts to Science.

The iGRC also aims at providing a forum for research collaboration and mentoring of outstanding graduate students in order to share research experience and opportunity to further develop a range of skills relevant to the research process.

Graduate students from many countries are invited to submit proposal(s) for presentation, as well as to attend the conference in order to appreciate and emulate the quality work completed by other students. The conference provides not only simply an opportunity to promote research work, but also, by participating, to enhance demonstration and presentation skills. In order to showcase the diversity of graduate student's scholarly and creative activities, two formats are available for conference sessions: Oral Presentations and Poster Session.

Objectives of the iGRC:

1. To disseminate graduate research outputs among research communities that benefit the public at international levels.
2. To provide graduate students, faculty members and researchers the opportunities for developing academic leadership through their research presentations at this international conference.
3. To create an international academic atmosphere and research development among graduate students, faculty members, researchers and participants.
4. To enhance current frontier of research activities and achievements.
5. To enhance quality of research work so as to reach international standard.
